Conquer the Buckhorn Trail

ENHANCE YOUR MOUNTAIN BIKE SKILLS WITH LOCAL PRO ALISON DUNLAP.

GOLD CAMPRoad, COLORADO SPRINGS If your bunny hop isn't hopping and your brakes are always smoking, maybe it's time for a skills tune-up. Former World Champion Alison Dunlap offers private clinics throughout the summer and fall in the hills near Gold Camp Road, above her Colorado Springs home. After some flatland drills, you'll practice technical climbing on the Buckhorn Trail, followed by fearless downhill on Capt. Jack's bumps and chutes, bolstered by tips from Dunlap and her pro instructors. "There's a very difficult switchback halfway up Buckhorn that's in a lot of loose gravel," says Dunlap. "We'll talk about this section, demonstrate, and then have the riders practice till they get it." Intimidated by riding with a two-time Olympian? Dunlap swears her clinics can be tailored to any ability level—even first-timers.

VITALS: Gather a group of up to 15 friends for a low-pressure private lesson with Dunlap. Prices range from $250 to $350 per person, depending on the location and size of the group; clinics are also available in Jefferson County. ## 2 Storm a Real Castle

LIVE IT UP AT THIS MANSION-CUM-CULTURAL CENTER.

CHEROKEE RANCH AND CASTLE, SEDALIA

Built in 1926, the Cherokee Ranch and Castle's original purpose was to serve as the summer home and hunting retreat for Denver real estate magnate Charles Alfred Johnson and his cronies. While it has been open for tours and teas for 12 years, since 2006 it has also hosted a summer performing arts series that showcases some of the Front Range's best talent (think: Colorado Symphony Orchestra and the Denver Center Theatre Company). Preconcert festivities include a wine tasting and dinner, but the highlight is a tour that explains the castle's hodge-podge of architectural styles. NATASHA GARDNER

VITALS: This month see Lynn Baker and the Lamont School of Music (Aug. 16) or "Shakespeare's Women: Lovers, Mothers, Queens, and Courtesans," presented by the Denver Center Theatre Company (Aug. 24). 303-688-5555, www.cherokeeranch.org STAY OVERNIGHT: Make a rezzie to stay in one of the 55 historic rooms at the renowned Cliff House in Manitou Springs.
